

The Department of Sociology, McMaster University invites applications for a full-time tenure-track position at the level of Assistant Professor starting July 1, 2012. The Department is seeking a sociological social psychologist with research interests in any of the areas covered within the Department. The Department specializes in three key areas, Individual and Society, Occupations and Organizations and Social Inequality. In addition, there are a number of substantive areas of interest. Additional information about these areas can be found at <http://www.sociology.mcmaster.ca/>

Candidates must have a PhD in Sociology, although applicants who expect to have all of the requirements for the PhD completed by April 1, 2012 will be considered. Candidates will be expected to establish a research program in social psychology and to compete successfully for external funding. Candidates will also be expected to teach in and contribute towards the development of the Department's new Social Psychology program.

The Department of Sociology is a research-oriented department with an active graduate program leading to the degrees of MA and PhD in Sociology.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply, however Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be considered first for this position. McMaster University is committed to employment equity within its community, and to recruiting a diverse faculty and staff. The University welcomes applications from all qualified candidates, including women, members of visible minorities, Aboriginal persons, members of sexual minorities, and persons with disabilities.

The closing date for applications is Monday, November 21, 2011. A complete application, including a curriculum vita, a representative sample of academic writing, and three letters of reference should be sent to the address below. Candidates are also encouraged to submit their teaching dossiers and teaching evaluations.
